

IT administrators will never accept dynamic instrumentation.

~~Security~~ features

should be implemented as simply as possible, at the expense of redundant, duplicated, inefficient code.

except when speed/energy/memory matter.

Don't just make the right thing easy, make the wrong thing hard.

* Is computing overapproximations for large programs feasible? (human interaction may help)